The incidence and impact of flooding has been increasing across the world for the past 100 years and the trend is set to continue. Flooding is the most common natural disaster facing European populations, affecting 50 of 53 countries in the WHO European Region. Without action, up to half million additional people will be affected by flooding every year by 2080 (WHO 2013).

We've got an opportunity...

We have a fantastic opportunity for a highly organised and motivated individual to join our Independent Living & Crisis Response team in Belfast on a par-time basis.

Reporting to the Project Manager you will participate primarily in policy research gathering and analysing quantitative and qualitative data, and preparing reports - especially in the field of public policy relating to resilient communities, flood prevention and flood emergency management.

In addition, you will support the training of key stakeholders in 11 cities within the AA region (including Northern Ireland) to use Red Cross Community Resilience toolkits in conjunction with local communities to improve their preparedness for any future flooding events.
Say hello to the team...

The Independent Living (IL) & Crisis Response (CR) service (IL/CR) supports people in the space between hospital and home and responds to the needs of people in crisis following an emergency; maintaining an extensive network of external relationships across health, social care, and emergency services.

About you...

To be successful in this position you must have the following skills and experience:

- Degree level or equivalent by experience in policy and research, or related subject
- Proven experience of at least 2 years in public policy & research
- Proven ability to produce quality reports with significant policy content within agreed deadlines
- Experience of defining, analysing and interpreting quantitative and qualitative information
- Experience of monitoring public policy
- Experience of research writing
- Experience of working collaboratively on projects
- Experience in managing stakeholder relationships

Closing date for application is 23.59 on the 31st of July 2019 with interviews to follow.

Candidates who meet shortlisting criteria may be invited to interview before the closing date.
